SWINE FLU UPDATE: WHO RAISES ALERT LEVEL TO 5

Connecticut public schools, all 1,100, along with an uncertain number of private secondary education schools, have received swine flu preparedness warnings from the state health department.

New York state cases are now over 60 confirmed of the H1N1 virus strain, mostly of students.

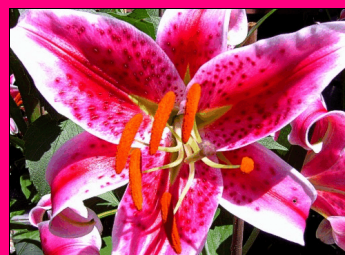

Cases have been reported in California, Texas, Arizona, Maine, Indiana and Kentucky.

Over 160 people have died in Mexico where this strain of flu has taken on a deadly foothold in the western hemisphere. Tamiflu, offered as a cure-all, has limited preventative efficacy. World Health Organization, WHO, level is now 5.

The only preventative measures are to repeatedly wash hands and to avoid airborne pathogens from infected people, and to refrain from any physical contact with others who may appear to be fine at first glance.
