BEIJING - 5,335 students perished in the 2008 earthquake that ravaged Sichuan Province according to a report from Chinese officials. Activists who had continuously agitated for the central government to release the casualties death total, complained the admission was too little and too late. Parents who lost children in the natural disaster had been demanding to know how many schools collapsed in the May 12 quake due to shoddy construction and lax building oversight. Other unofficial estimates put student fatalities alone as high as 9,000 out of 70,000 total earthquake deaths.

VATICAN CITY - Pope Benedict XVI began a week-long pilgrimage to the Middle East in an effort to strengthen frayed ties with Muslims and Jews and to bolster support to beleaguered Christians in the volatile region. The self-described 'pilgrim of peace' had previously infuriated Muslims when he linked the Prophet Muhammad to violence and similarly agitated Jews when he lifted the ex-communication of a bishop who had denied the Holocaust ever happened. The Pope's first trip to an Arab country will begin in Jordan.

ROME - A Palestinian responsible for the death of an American citizen in the Achille Lauro cruise ship has been released by Italian authorities after serving 23 years in prison for the crime. Youssef Magied al-Moqui had been convicted of shooting Leon Klinghoffer, an elderly resident of a New York City Jewish community.

ISLAMABAD - Taliban militants on the Pakistan side of the volatile Afghanistan border have been accused by Pakistan army officers of looting, destroying property and causing the death of a Pakistani soldier in the Swat Valley. The rise in tensions is severely undermining a controversial agreement brokered between the central government and Taliban leaders in which the Taliban would have autonomy in governing the northern area under its own interpretations of Muslim strictures.
